Dear Colleagues:

The International Network of Scholars (INET) is an e-group of over 300 scholars from more than 30 nations who are studying many aspects of school, family, and community partnerships. Every other year, INET convenes at the start of the annual meeting of the American Educational Research Association (AERA) to report their work on family and community involvement, share ideas, and renew friendships.

The 20th International Roundtable on School, Family, and Community Partnerships will be held Friday, April 12, 2022 in San Diego, California (at an AERA location to be announced). We are delighted that AERA will meet in person after the cancellations of the past two years.

This is an important anniversary for INET—the 20th meeting (first conducted in 1989 by co-founders Don Davies and Joyce Epstein). We will pay tribute to Don, who passed away in 2019, to honor his leadership in the field of school, family, and community partnerships.

Please note there are two ways to participate at INET 2022.

- 1. Previously Accepted Paper: If you had a paper ACCCEPTED for INET 2020, you must update or confirm your abstract and contact information (or withdraw the paper if you cannot attend AERA). Check the appropriate box on the attached form.
OR
- 2. New Submission: If you did not have a paper accepted in 2020, OR if you wish to replace the prior paper with a new one, you must submit a proposal for review. Check the appropriate box on the attached form.

INET welcomes reports of new research on all aspects of school, family, and community partnerships:

- Advances in quantitative and qualitative methods of research on partnerships
- Effects of policies on family and community engagement at the school, district, state, and/or national levels
- Family involvement and results for students at the preschool, elementary, middle, and/or high school levels
- Issues of equity in engaging families with diverse socioeconomic, racial, and cultural backgrounds
- Role of technology in improving communications from school-to-home and home-to-school
- Students' voices and roles in partnership programs
- Preparing future teachers and administrators to organize strong and sustainable partnership programs
- Scaling up effective interventions to improve family and community engagement
- Connections with the community
- YOUR research question on partnerships and new findings.

Please share this information with colleagues who are studying school, family, and community partnerships.

We look forward to seeing you—face to face—in San Diego in the spring!

Sincerely,

Joyce L. Epstein
